

Editors and Contributors

The task of writing and editing this book was performed gratuitously by the authors and editors. It was in every way a labor of love contributed by persons who believe that the merits of the land-value-tax system should be more widely known, as well as its history in those places where its progress has been halted. The publishers extend their sincere thanks to each, and to the many others who helped to make the volume possible. A special word of appreciation is due Mr. K. J. Kristensen of Denmark from whose studies the section on Denmark was compiled and who patiently directed the efforts of the compiler in order that the facts might be presented in terms that would be understood by Americans.

THE EDITORS

HARRY GUNNISON BROWN was professor of economics at the University of Missouri until his retirement in 1951. He is now a member of the economics department of the University of Mississippi. Among his many published works are The Economic Basis of Tax Reform (1932) and Basic Principles of Economics (1942).

HAROLD S. BUTTENHEIM is editor of The American City Magazine, a monthly publication devoted to the betterment of cities, towns and villages. He has held, and still holds, important active or honorary connections with organizations concerned with housing, zoning, city planning, and municipal administration.

PHILIP H. CORNICK was a member of the research staff of the Institute of Public Administration from 1921 to 1950, and since the latter year has made independent studies of fiscal and other problems of units of local government. He is the author of Premature Subdivision and Its Consequence, and of other research reports published by official agencies.

GLENN E. HOOVER is professor emeritus (economics and sociology), Mills College, Oakland, California. He is the author of, La Stabilisation du Franc, Essays in Provocation, and Twentieth Century Economic Thought (editor and contributor).

THE CONTRIBUTORS

HOU-CHUN CHANG, B.S., M.B.A. (Harvard), was formerly a colonel in the Chinese Army. Among other things, since his arrival in this country, he has served as editor of the Chinese Times, San Francisco.

E. J. CRAIGIE represented the Flinders District in the Parliament of South Australia from 1930-41. He is a lecturer and writer on land-value taxation and for 37 years has been secretary of the Henry George League of South Australia. He is vice-president of the Henry George Foundation of Australia and was president of the International Union for Land-Value Taxation and Free Trade.

C. A. GASTON has been the executive secretary of the Fairhope Single Tax Corporation since 1936. He is the son of the late Ernest B. Gaston, the first secretary of the Corporation. The Gaston family was the first family to occupy colony land as residents of the new community of Fairhope, and Mr. Ernest Gaston continued to serve the colony as its secretary with only two interludes of one year each until he retired and was succeeded by his son.

FRANCIS B. GOODALE, LL.B., is a member of the Massachusetts Bar, and a partner in the firm of Hill, Barlow, Goodale and Wiswall, Boston. He was a trustee of the enclave of Trapelo and has studied similar enclaves here and abroad.

ARTHUR W. MADSEN, B.Sc. (Edinburgh), has traveled in Europe, Russia and the United States and spent seven years in South Africa before returning to London later to become editor of Land and Liberty, an international journal devoted to land-value taxation and free trade. He is secretary of the United Committee for the Taxation of Land Values (London), is the author of many books and papers dealing with the latter subjects on a world-wide basis, and a well-known lecturer in this field.

ROBERT MAJOR is an economist and journalist; former director of the Hungarian Economic Association. He has been an editor of a daily newspaper and of an economic journal in Budapest. He left Hungary in 1947 and is now a contributor to British and American periodicals. Among his published works are A Short Encyclopedia of World Economics and A History of World Economics between the World Wars.

ROLLAND O'REGAN, F.R.C.S., is a surgeon whose lifelong avocation has been the study of taxation. He is one of the leaders in the New Zealand League for the Taxation of Land Values.

HERBERT T. OWENS is a journalist and traveler. As such he has observed the practice of land-value taxation in many countries and has studied its introduction, history and present position in western Canada from official documents and other sources.

V. G. PETERSON is a member of the staff of the Robert Schalkenbach Foundation.

LAWSON PURDY, LL.D., was president of the Department of Taxes and Assessments, New York, 1906-17. He was formerly president of the National Conference of City Planning and of the National Municipal League and was secretary of the Commission to Revise Tenement House Law. He has been president of the Russell Sage Foundation and is the present head of the Robert Schalkenbach Foundation.

DONALD STEPHENS is the son of Frank Stephens, one of the original founders of Arden. Since 1909 Arden has been his permanent home and he has served the enclave in many capacities. He worked as a carpenter and builder in the early years and later had a shop where he hand-built furniture, playing an active part in the development of the craft movement. He was one of the Committee of Eight which founded Ardentown in 1922 and one of the three who founded Ardencroft in 1950. He has studied community experiments abroad and in the United States.

M. B. THOMSON is a summer resident and property owner in Free Acres, New Jersey. He is a member of the Free Acres Association, and for many years has served on various committees. In recent years he has contributed to the cultural activities of the colony, especially those pertaining to the theatre, with which he was long associated.

C. VILLALOBOS-DOMÍNGUEZ was formerly professor of decorative drawing at the University of Buenos Aires. He has been an active participant in efforts to bring land-value taxation into practice in Argentina.

PERCY R. WILLIAMS was formerly the executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. Later he was a member of the City Board of Assessors and from 1934 to 1942 was chief city assessor of Pittsburgh. He is now a real estate and assessment consultant for that city.