

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The author has received much assistance in writing this book, and fears that he will fail to give proper acknowledgement to some of those who have helped. He would like to express gratitude to the people who have read and criticised the manuscript: his wife; Dr L. F. Haber of the University of Surrey; and Mr V. H. Blundell, Secretary of the United Committee for the Taxation of Land Values. Thanks are also due to the late Mr Andrew MacLaren, sometime MP for Burslem, who gave personal recollections of the great land battles before the First World War and during the inter-war period; to the Hon. Mrs Helen Bowen Pease, who allowed the author to consult the papers of her father, the first Lord Wedgwood, and gave some very useful sidelights on several of the personalities; to Mr A. J. A. Morris, who was particularly helpful in showing the author extracts from the papers of Sir Charles Trevelyan (of whom he has written a biography, shortly to be published); to Professor T. W. Moody for a helpful discussion, and facilities for the author to give a seminar at Trinity College, Dublin; to Mr Christopher Wrigley, who found some very useful material at the Ulster Record Office: to Mr Ronald Banks for his useful comments; and to Mr Malcolm Hill, without whom the book would probably not have seen the light of day. Two of the author's friends — Mr David K. Mills of London, and Mr Harry Pollard of Tujunga, California — require special mention, for it was they who originally persuaded him of the importance of the Land Question. The author would also thank the University of Surrey for a grant from the Faculty IV Research Fund.

A number of archives have been used, and in all cases the author has good reason for gratitude to the librarians for their kindness and help. These include authorities of the National Libraries of Ireland, Scotland and Wales; the British Library; the Beaverbrook Library; the Bodleian Library; the Library of Christ Church, Oxford; the Public and Scottish Record Offices; the Universities of Birmingham, Edinburgh and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; the National Liberal Club and the United Committee for the Taxation of Land Values. The author wishes to thank those bodies for permission to quote documents in their possession, or in which they have copyright, and also the following copyright owners: the First Beaverbrook Foundation; Mrs M. Ellis; Miss E. Humphreys-Owen; the Marquis of Lothian; Mrs Helen Bowen Pease; Lord Primrose; the (late) Marquis of Salisbury; the Scottish Liberal Party; the United Committee for the Taxation of Land Values.
