CHINESE FOR FREEDOM

EDITORS LAND AND FREEDOM :

I retain so vivid a memory of the following: In the course of a far western lecture tour, or rather one of my tours for carrying on the work of my husband, Joseph Fels, I was in Victoria, British Columbia. At the evening meeting my attention was particularly arrested by a rather large group of Chinese men and women, most of them quite young and all well dressed and good-looking. When I had finished speaking there came to me, from among these, a young girl with a beautiful bouquet, which latter she tendered me with graceful words. Both these words, and those on the card with the bouquet, told how her group were followers of Sun Yat-Sen and that they were with me in what I sought to accomplish. These people and their expression of sympathy with me gave me then, and continues ever since to give me, deep gratification. I have a sense, these days, of their noble struggle, of close relationship to them. I feel confident of their successful achievement; and the harvest will be not only theirs, but the whole world's.
