

The School in the News

SAN DIEGO audiences heard Mrs. Eva Maxwell, director of the Henry George School, interviewed on KGB on September 4th, and a few days later there was a dandy picnic at the home of Gordon and Julie Gran with movies, games, stunts and swimming. All this was a good prelude to the fall term which opened September 15th with classes in Coronado, Lemon Grove, La Jolla, Hillcrest, East San Diego and the Ocean Beach Community Center.

CHICAGO held two late summer commencement dinners for graduates completing the study courses at fourteen companies who are participating in the Commerce and Industry program. Frank Flick, president of the school's board of trustees and president of Flick-Reedy Corporation was the toastmaster, and James MacRae, director of conference leadership and educational television, led a round-table discussion relating current national and world problems to the economic fundamentals studied in the various groups.

DETROIT initiated its fall season with a talk by William Sloan, director-secretary of the Mayor's Committee for Industrial and Commercial Development on "Your Stake in Detroit's Industrial Growth." C. Leonard Huckabone presided. Five classes will begin in October, two of them in downtown Detroit. Others are at the Grosse Pointe Library, the Birmingham High School and Highland Park High School.

OHIO's director, Verlin Gordon, writes of the death of Lawrence Rep, a truly devoted Georgist who was working on a Yugoslav translation of Progress and Poverty, following a visit to his homeland some time ago which was reported in HGN. Many will remember him as a loyal helper and registrar at the Berea, Ohio, conference three years ago.

NEW JERSEY has initiated a "do-it-yourself" method for fall classes in Philosophy, Economics, Government, History, Monetary Science, and Speech & Writing. These will be ten-week courses beginning in October and will consist of give-and-take discussion led by interested leaders. A fee of $5 will be charged, and all groups will meet at the school headquarters, 78 Clinton Avenue, Newark.

NEW YORK offers among advanced classes for the first time the History of the Georgist Movement by director Robert Clancy, and Law for the Layman taught by Richard Zeif. Applications of General Semantics will again be under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph Meiers. Public Speaking will be offered by Joseph B. Rose, and the Great Books round-up goes into its second year with George Royal.

Robert Clancy, "the Sunday painter," has done some murals, and visitors to the school library at 50 East 69th Street are observing and enjoying his exhibit. Robert Rodriguez, assistant director, has regrettably resigned to enter the insurance field after four years on the staff. He will continue to take charge of the film program two Friday evenings each month, however. There will be films on October 17th and 31st at eight p.m. On October 10th the Fridays at Eight program gets under way with "Around the World with the IGY" by Mrs. Mary Schiffman, and on October 24th Arthur Sopher will take a look "Behind the Bamboo Curtain."
