Dear George

Just to mention the enclosed clipping from the local paper of a letter of mine which I was prompted to write after a story appeared on the subject of "Appraisals". They printed it just as I had written. This and the report I sent to you on "Nixon and the Price Freeze" are all I have been able to write. Although I have plenty of time on my hands I am confined mainly to the house and on a chair or lounge with my foot elevated to improve the "circulation". The doctor seems to be satisfied with the progress being made but I can't help being impatient with my inability to attend to things in Philadelphia.

No doubt I shall hear of the results of to-night's meeting. With my original association with the Philadelphia Extension I can't be indifferent to what happens to it.

As at present am scheduled for another visit to the doctor on Monday at which time I hope to be free to return to Philadelphia. It will be three weeks this Friday when I came here on the insistence of my son and his wife. Perhaps this experience is just what I needed to deflate my ego. Am beginning to realize I am not so important and yet that there is always something for me to do. I am also grateful that I have loved ones who also love me.

Sincerely

Julian Hickok
