

HGF BRIEFING NOTES

OPEN DAY EVENT

The Henry George Foundation Open Day Event was held on the 23rd of September and was well attended, drawing some who came along on the off-chance after seeing it advertised.

The main even of the day was the celebration of the publication of the annotated version of Progress and Poverty, volume II of the Complete Works now underway. David Triggs gave an excellent presentation of the life of Henry George and the circumstances that led him to writing Progress and Poverty. This was followed by a panel discussion where questions were put from the floor to the panel. Most question were very practical and were answered from the insights of Henry George. There was perhaps a divide between those who wished for more campaigning and those who felt education of was the most important work of the Henry George Foundation.

We were fortunate to have Brendan Hennigan, Program Director of the Schalkenbach Foundation, with us and he gave a brief report on the work of the Schalkenbach Foundation. We had a video link with Francis Peddle in the USA and Duncan Pickard in Scotland in conversation with David Triggs. Francis Peddle was keen to strengthen the links with the HGF, perhaps through sharing meetings over the Internet.

LAND&LIBERTY TAKES ON SOCIAL MEDIA

The time is right for Land&Liberty to spread the vital message of the HGF via social media.

Since September of 2010 The Henry George Foundation has had an active presence on the social media platform Twitter. Via the Twitter "handle" @henrygeorgeuk more than 700 followers has been able to read, discuss and share almost 2,000 land-related tweets since the launch a little over seven years ago.

In much the same vein Land&Liberty has now been launched as a separate site on the other significant social media platform Facebook. Besides continuously making all future issues of Land&Liberty available to interested Facebook users, a few dips into the magazine's past can be expected alongside Henry George Foundation event announcements.
