

MINOR PARTY VOTE PROVES NEGLIGIBLE

Brandon, Social Labor Nominee,
 Ran Fourth for Mayor, With
 Total of 1,886.

Candidates of the minor parties played only a small part in Tuesday's election when Tammany Hall swept all before it. The Social Labor, the Commonwealth Land and the Progressive Party each had a candidate for Mayor and the Workers Party put up men for Controller and for President of the Board of Aldermen. Colonel Warren Shaw Fisher, head of the Progressive Political League, Inc., and President of the United War Veterans, who sponsored a movement after the primaries to get Mayor Hylan to run independently, ran second among the minor candidates for Mayor to Joseph Brandon of the Social Labor Party. Colonel Fisher had entered the race after Mayor Hylan, Congressman LaGuardia and Commissioner of Police Richard E. Enright had refused to allow their names to be placed in nomination by the Progressives.

The Commonwealth Land Party, successor to the old Single Tax Party, nominated Laurence W. Tracy for Mayor.

Brandon received his greatest vote in Manhattan in the Sixteenth Assembly District, where he got 62 votes. In the Fifteenth Assembly District, which contains the so-called silk stocking district, he received 37 votes. In only one borough, Queens, did Fisher poll more votes than Brandon.

The vote for the three candidates follows:

For Mayor.

	Brandon, Soc. Lab.	Tracy, Comwith	Fisher, Ld. Prog.
Manhattan .....	518	141	383
Kings .....	689	209	461
Bronx .....	512	88	256
Queens .....	146	35	283
Richmond .....	21	12	16
Total .....	1,886	485	1,399

The Workers Party had designated Benjamin Gitlow for Mayor, but his name was barred from the ballot by the Board of Elections because he had never been restored to citizenship after serving a sentence in Sing Sing for criminal anarchy. The party, however, made designations for the offices of Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen. William W. Weinstein, its nominee for Controller, ran well ahead of William Woodhouse of the Social Labor Party, Edward M. Caffall, Commonwealth Land Party, and Thomas Barrett, the Progressive nominee. Weinstein, running on a platform for lower rents, cooperative building, municipal ownership of transit and the unionization of municipal employes, received 3,388 votes in the five boroughs. Woodhouse was his nearest competitor, receiving 2,262 votes.

Following is the vote by boroughs for the four candidates:

For Controller.

	W'dhouse, Soc. Lr.	Caffall, Com.	W'stone, Ld. Workers.	B'rett, Prog.
Manhattan ..	472	124	843	461
Kings .....	767	93	1,197	439
Brorx .....	685	42	1,113	184
Queens .....	262	61	225	268
Richmond ....	76	1	5	14
Total .....	2,262	321	3,388	1,366

The Workers Party's candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, Charles Krumbein, received 3,296 votes, a lead of 1,349 over Miss Olive M. Johnson, who ran on the Social Labor ticket. Joseph J. Derse Jr., Progressive, and Morris Van Veen, Commonwealth Land candidate, ran third and fourth. Krumbein, who was sentenced to Joliet Prison for conspiracy to overthrow the Government and who was indicted in 1922 for alleged violation of the Michigan anti-syndicalism law, polled his largest vote in Kings County.

Miss Johnson, who was her party's candidate for Governor in 1918, received her largest vote in Kings County.

The vote by boroughs follows:

For President of the Board of Aldermen.

	Johnson, Soc. Lab.	VanVeen, Com.Ld.	K'bein, Ld. Workers.	Derse, Prog.
Manhattan ..	436	198	906	385
Kings .....	716	150	1,263	486
Bronx .....	504	54	1,043	152
Queens .....	223	37	267	218
Richmond ....	18	...	17	9
Total .....	1,947	439	3,296	1,230

The vote in the Bronx and in Brooklyn in each case was the deciding factor in the relative position of each candidate.
